

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention provides a front braking indicator light, which is mounted on front side of a car or a motorcycle, meanwhile is connected to the original control unit of the vehicle, so that when the driver is pressing down the brake to slow down the vehicle, the illuminator and the original braking indicator light are lighted in the same time, thereby not only indicating the running state of the vehicle, but also reminding the vehicles and pedestrians on the road to pay attention so as to avoid both sides misjudging to occur accident.